Drastic PATCO schedule changes start this week

Detour. Benjamin Franklin Bridge motorists and PATCO riders should prepare for the crowds.

Rush-hour PATCO riders and Benjamin Franklin Bridge commuters should set their alarm clocks ahead a few minutes early starting this Friday.

Both are going to be crowded for the next two months.

The transit agency will close a lane of motor vehicle traffic along the bridge as well as one eastbound train track during peak hours for the next 60 days as it continues its overhaul of the bridge's transit corridor.

PATCO's goal is to first replace tracks along the south end of the bridge.

"The tracks are reaching the end of their useful life," said Michael Conallen, deputy CEO of PATCO.

Construction will return again in the fall for another 50 days while crews replace tracks on the north side.

The far-right lane carrying motorists into New Jersey will be closed starting Friday for construction workers' vehicles and supplies.

So, during rush hour, three lanes will be open as opposed to four. During the off-peak hours, two lanes will be closed.

"We acknowledge that this is going to cause our riders a great inconvenience and frustration," Conallen said. "We're taking these steps to make sure the tracks … [are] as safe and in the best possible condition that we can achieve."

Why now?

"Because the train goes over a suspension bridge. To do work on the track, you have to take it out of service. That means we only have one track to send our customers over the bridge," he said. "By doing the work now, we would impact less customers than we would if we did it at the height of our ridership during the year."

Also, added Fran O'Brien, spokeswoman for the Delaware River Port Authority, "a lot of people are on vacation."

The facts

The closures will take place during daylight hours as needed throughout the week and will affect counter-commuting traffic — or traffic moving in the direction opposite the main rush-hour flow.

- During the morning rush hour, for example, the eastbound far south lane will be closed, leaving two lanes of traffic moving toward New Jersey.
- The DRPA advises motorists to cross the Walt Whitman Bridge during evening rush hour until the 60-day closure ends in late July or early August.
- The two-year track rehabilitation project is slated for completion in early 2015, officials said on Tuesday.

PSPCA. Suspect in dog fighting ring found guilty on six counts

A West Philadelphia woman who had been charged with dog fighting in 2012 was on Friday found guilty on six counts of animal cruelty, said the Pennsylvania SPCA.

Cynthia Bulle, 31, was convicted of felony dog fighting, felony conspiracy, summary level animal cruelty and possession of an instrument of crime.

Co-conspirator Hakim Miller, 35, who had pleaded guilty in March, was sentenced to up to two years in prison on animal cruelty counts, one to two years for violating parole and three years' probation.

Philadelphia police found evidence of the dog fighting ring on Dec. 12, 2012 when they were serving a warrant on a different matter at the 6000 block of Allman Street in West Philadelphia, officials said.

After an PSPCA investigation, charges were filed against the duo.

Bulle is slated for sentencing in August. METRO

Traffic court. Witness describes illegal 'ticket-fixing' request

The first witness at the federal corruption trial of former Philadelphia Traffic Court officials charged with pervasive "ticket-fixing" was a Bucks County judge who described being asked to play ball while visiting Traffic Court.

Retired Bucks County judge Ruth Dietrich testified about an instance when Judge Willie Singletary "asked to have a favorable decision" on a traffic ticket case while Dietrich was assigned to work in Philadelphia Traffic Court.

"He just brought a piece of paper with a citation number on it," Dietrich testified. "I rolled it up and gave it to my court liaison and said, 'You can take a hearing like everybody else.'"

When prosecutors asked why she didn't help Singletary, Dietrich replied, "Because it's not legal."

Trial will continue today for Singletary, five other former judges and a local businessman facing wire and mail fraud charges for the alleged corruption revealed by an FBI raid in September 2011.

Three judges and one businessman charged in the case have already pleaded guilty.

SAM NEWHOUSE

Making the case

Federal prosecutors say 50 traffic tickets from 2008 to 2011 will establish the practice of "consideration" — dismissing tickets for the connected.

- Defense attorneys argued the dismissals were correct because officers who wrote tickets did not testify at Traffic Court.

Arrest made in dirt-bike robbery, shooting

Quasym Finch, 22, of North Philadelphia, was arrested over the weekend and charged with attempted murder for allegedly shooting a man to steal his dirt bike, which was being sold on Craigslist.

Police said Finch and an accomplice met the two men selling the bike around 3:30 p.m. on April 25 near North Fifth Street and Erie Avenue.

Finch allegedly got on the bike, pulled out a gun and shot one of the men in the chest area before riding off with his accomplice. METRO

Lenfest, Katz win bid for Daily News, Inquirer

News. The Inquirer and Daily News were won in a private auction for $88 million.

The war for sole possession of Philadelphia's two major newspapers and the largest local news website in the region was settled at an owners-only private auction Tuesday.

Lewis Katz and H.F. "Gerry" Lenfest outbid fellow co-owners George E. Norcross III, Joseph Buckelew and William Hankowsky for ownership of Interstate General Media, which is comprised of the Inquirer, Daily News and Philly.com.

The Lenfest and Katz duo won the auction, which took place in a local law firm's office and was closed to the public and press, with a final bid of $88 million.

The five purchased the brands and formed the group together in 2012 for $55 million.

Auction details

The auction was the result of disagreements among the owners, namely Norcross and Lenfest, over the individual brand direction.

- The media company has changed hands more than five times since '06.
- In a statement Norcross' group said, "It is time to return the company's focus to journalism and away from conflict among its owners."

Police defend their actions following California killings

Mass murder. Guns would have been found had cops entered shooter's home weeks before.

Police in the California community where a man killed six college students said on Monday they had no grounds to search the 22-year-old suspect's home when they met with him in April over a report that he had posted disturbing videos.

The disclosure that the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department sent deputies to Elliot Rodger's door just weeks before Friday night's shooting rampage has raised questions about whether police could have done more to prevent it.

Rodger's mother asked deputies on April 30 to check on him at his apartment in the town of Isla Vista, near the University of California at Santa Barbara, after she saw videos he had posted on the Internet that she found disturbing.

By the numbers

Recounting that visit in a 140-page manifesto he sent to friends and relatives shortly before the shooting began, Rodger said that if the seven deputies at his door had searched his room, they would have found the firearms he had hidden there and denied him the chance to carry out his violent plans.

Santa Barbara County Sheriff Bill Brown has said that deputies found Rodger to be polite and courteous during the encounter and that he did not appear to meet the criteria to be held on mental health grounds.

On Monday, sheriff's spokeswoman Kelly Hoover declined to discuss that visit in greater detail, pending an internal investigation, but said that deputies in general were barred from entering a residence without a warrant.

"An exception would be if deputies felt that a person was a harm to themselves or others or there was an immediate threat," Hoover said. "In this case, we would have had to determine that Elliot Rodger or his roommates were in immediate danger." REUTERS

Obama plans two-year pullout in Afghanistan

President Barack Obama said 2014 will be "pivotal" for U.S. involvement in Afghanistan as he announced plans to cut the American military presence to almost zero over the next two years.

As the U.S. combat role in Afghanistan ends this year, U.S. forces there will be reduced to 9,800 troops, enough to help train Afghan forces and conduct counterterrorism operations, he said. In 2015, that deployment will be cut in half and by the end of 2016 the U.S. will be down to only enough troops for security for the American Embassy. BLOOMBERG

Ukraine leader unleashes deadly assault on rebels

Rebels. Moscow says the rebellion is purely local and it has no control over the fighters.

Pro-Russian separatist fighters take positions outside the Donetsk airport. / GETTY IMAGES

Ukrainian aircraft and paratroopers killed more than 50 pro-Russian rebels in an assault that raged into a second day on Tuesday after a newly elected president vowed to crush the revolt in the east once and for all.

The unprecedented offensive throws a challenge to Russian President Vladimir Putin, who has said he reserves the right to defend Russian speakers under threat, but whose past assertions that Kiev is led by an illegitimate "junta" were undermined by the landslide election victory of billionaire Petro Poroshenko.

Reuters journalists counted 20 bodies in combat fatigues in one room of a city morgue in Donetsk. Some of the bodies were missing limbs, a sign that the government had brought to bear heavy firepower against the rebels for the first time.

The government said it suffered no losses in the assault, which began with air strikes hours after Ukrainians elected Poroshenko as their new president. REUTERS

Aurora shooting. Supreme Court rejects appeal over reporter source

The U.S. Supreme Court on Tuesday declined to hear an appeal by a man facing trial for a high-profile mass shooting at a Colorado movie theater in 2012 over his lawyers' attempt to force a Fox News reporter to testify.

The court's refusal to hear James Holmes' appeal leaves intact a December 2013 New York Court of Appeals ruling that said reporter Jana Winter did not have to disclose details about her sources.

Holmes' lawyers wanted Winter's testimony concerning her reporting on the shooting at a theater in Aurora, Colorado, in which 12 people were killed.

The attorneys say the information disclosed to Winter by law enforcement officials about material Holmes wrote in a notebook jeopardized their client's chances of getting a fair trial. A local judge had earlier issued a gag order prohibiting details about the notebook being made public.

Holmes, who faces a total of 166 felony charges, has pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity.

Honor killing. Woman stoned to death by her family in Pakistan

Approximately 1,000 Pakistani women are killed every year by their families in honor killings, according to Pakistani rights group the Aurat Foundation. / GETTY IMAGES

A 25-year-old woman was stoned to death by her family outside one of Pakistan's top courts on Tuesday in a so-called "honor" killing for marrying the man she loved, police said.

Farzana Iqbal was waiting for the High Court in the eastern city of Lahore to open when a group of around one dozen men began attacking her with bricks, said Umer Cheema, a senior police officer.

Her father, two brothers and former fiance were among the attackers, he said. Iqbal suffered severe head injuries and was pronounced dead at a hospital, police said.

All the suspects except her father escaped. He admitted killing his daughter, Cheema said, and explained it was a matter of honor. Many Pakistani families think a woman marrying her own choice of man brings dishonor on the family. REUTERS

How do you spell 'winner'?

Busy bees. Indian-American children prove to be whizzes in spelling competitions.

Arvind Mahankali after the 2013 Scripps National Spelling Bee / GETTY IMAGES

No one knows who will win the Scripps National Spelling Bee in Maryland this week, but if past performance is anything to go by, odds are an Indian-American youngster will walk away with the trophy.

Children of Indian origin have had a stunning run in the nationally televised contest, nailing words such as "guerdon," "stromuhr" and "guetapens" to win 10 times in the last 15 years.

Last year's winner, New York middle-schooler Arvind Mahankali, was the sixth Indian-American in a row to take the title and a $30,000 scholarship. Indian-Americans swept the Top 3 spots in 2013, the same as the year before.

Of the 281 whizzes, ages 8 to 15, who will gather on Wednesday and Thursday at a hotel in Oxon Hill, Maryland, almost a quarter have names pointing to South Asian origins.

Indian-Americans make up only about 1 percent of the U.S. population, but will punch well above their weight at the National Spelling Bee. REUTERS

Bee feeder

Another feeder is the for-profit South Asian Spelling Bee, which draws about 1,500 contestants in a dozen U.S. cities and has a national title.

- The winning streak also is seen as a result of the close-knit Indian American families' emphasis on academic performance and success.
- A Pew Research Center analysis shows that almost 40 percent of Indian-Americans over 25 have advanced degrees, four times the overall U.S. level.

Quoted

"I don't think there's any secret or anything innate in Indian kids winning spelling bees. I don't think there's a spelling gene."

Nupur Lala, who started the South Asian winning streak in 1999 and who stars in "Spellbound"

- There are more than 1 million students on charter school waiting lists across the country.
- Charter school enrollment was up 13 percent this school year.
- 600 charter schools opened their doors for the first time for the 2013-14 school year.
- A study by Stanford University found that charter schools do a better job teaching low-income students and students who are learning English than traditional public schools.

Getting to the heart of a charter

Seemoreat www.metro.us

A study last year by Stanford University's Center for Research on Education Outcomes found that charter schools were particularly popular among low-income families. More than half of the students currently enrolled in charter schools are considered to be living in poverty and charter schools attract a higher percentage of African-American students than public schools at large.

Notably, the study followed the performance of different charter schools since 2009 and found that charter school students made sharper gains in reading than conventional public schoolers.

Releasing his budget earlier this year, President Barack Obama increased funding to charters and has called them "incubators of innovation" in the past.

Only about 4 percent of public school students in the United States currently attend charter schools, but that number continues to grow as demand and interest in alternative education options rises among parents and students.

Kimye wedding wows (part 2)

Kim Kardashian posted this pic on her Instagram. Seems a little far away to be a selfie. / INSTAGRAM

Kim Kardashian's wedding gown has been revealed, and it's nothing short of incredible.

The Givenchy Haute Couture gown, designed by the house's creative director Riccardo Tisci, was everything it was rumored to be. Kim's curves were hugged in gorgeous handmade lacework with sheer cutouts on her sides, down her arms and her back, only covered up by a long, silk veil.

Kim Instagrammed two pictures Tuesday morning — one of she and new husband Kanye West walking back down the aisle and another of the newlyweds kissing in front of a wall of white and gold flowers.

Her hair was simple — with a touch of wave, cascading down her back. So was her bouquet, as not to distract from the custom dress. She completed her look with Lorraine Schwartz jewelry.

The two were wed in Florence, Italy, on May 24 at Forte di Belvedere. Sources have confirmed that they're honeymooning in Ireland at Castlemartyr Resort in East Cork.

'Friends' aren't friends?

It's like they're stuck in second gear. / GETTY IMAGES

Jennifer Aniston and her former "Friends" co-star Courteney Cox are reportedly not such good friends in real life at the moment, as Aniston has gotten tired of Cox constantly telling her to get pregnant, according to Radar Online. "Courteney has been pushing Jen to get pregnant for years. She's given Jen non-stop baby and pregnancy advice, and Jen is sick of it," a source says, adding that Aniston has been opting to spend her time with talk-show host Chelsea Handler instead. "She doesn't want a friend who's a total know-it-all. She'd much prefer to spend her time with someone like Chelsea, who would never tell her what she should or shouldn't do." And all that time with Handler isn't helping the rift with Cox: "Courteney can't stand Chelsea. Courteney thinks she's loud and crass, while Jen thinks Courteney is taking things too seriously and is acting like a jealous teenager. It's gotten to the point where neither one of them wants to make the effort to keep the friendship going," the source explains. NED EHRBAR

Talking point

Jenner needs to let it go

Not all Kardashian-related romances work out like Kanye and Kim. While Harry Styles and Kendall Jenner's brief romance has been over for months, Jenner reportedly "just can't get him out of her head" and hasn't stopped calling the One Direction star "despite their romance fizzing out months ago," according to Star magazine. "Now Kendall desperately wants him back."

Third time's the charm

Interview. "Blended" stars Adam Sandler and Drew Barrymore only meet every eight years.

Now that they're on their third romantic comedy together, Adam Sandler and Drew Barrymore are obviously big fans of each other — though Sandler says that until their latest, "Blended," it was all an act. "I love Drew. I've known her a long time. In all three movies, we have the pleasure of falling in love. The first two I faked it. But this one I really did," he jokes about his "The Wedding Singer" and "50 First Dates" co-star, to which she responds, "You fake it good."

The secret to their long-standing partnership? Patience, according to Barrymore. "Every eight years, I call [Sandler] up and I say, 'We need to meet for lunch,'" she explains. "And then I say, 'It's time.'"

See more at www.metro.us

With "Blended," they take on a rather unique set of dating circumstances: a widower and a divorcee, each with multiple kids at home, initially meet on a disastrous blind date and then accidentally share a family vacation to Africa, where being forced to spend time with each other gives them a chance to reconsider the other's faults.

For their third go-round together, Sandler and Barrymore find themselves playing parents, which might have as much to do with their age as it does with the fact that both stars now have kids at home. "I am now a mom. I'm going to be there for my kids. Moms are my Achilles' heel, emotionally speaking," Barrymore explains. "What really got me about reading the script and what gets me when I watch the movie is I want funny because I need to laugh, but I need heart and I need emotion. I want to laugh and I want to cry. ... When these two people quietly talk about how they just want to be good parents and what is going to make their kids happy and how are they going to function in this world, that just gets me. It made me cry in the script and it makes me cry in the movie."

And as far as how she's doing as a new mom? Her co-star gives her high marks. "You're all about your kids," he says, smiling. Not to be outdone in the mutual appreciation society, Barrymore has nice things to say about Sandler's parenting skills as well: "You're a good, patient, loving, awesome parent much like your character in the movies. That's always what I've taken away from it," she tells him. Get a room, you two.

The latest from filmmaker James Gray is "The Immigrant." / FILMMAGIC

James Gray's films — including the new drama "The Immigrant," starring Marion Cotillard and Joaquin Phoenix in 1920s New York City — are steeped in old movies. So it's inevitable that a conversation with him drifts to "The Godfather," "Gone With the Wind," Orson Welles, Italian cinema — and cheesesteaks. (On the Pat's vs. Geno's debate: "I think I'm Pat's. Actually, I think I'm Jim's.") Here are all the places a chat with James Gray goes to:

JAMES GRAY

The filmmaker drew on his grandparents' lives for the 1920s New York-set "The Immigrant."

HIS KIND OF TOWN

On making a small-scale movie: It would be different for something like "Captain America" or "Godzilla." There, the audience goes or it doesn't go the first week, and that's about what it is. But this kind of movie, you don't really know what you have until 10 years later. And either it lasts, or it doesn't.

On his films as portraits of a fading New York City: The city is going away. I'm not so keen to romanticize New York from the '70s, which is when I grew up, because it was pretty bad. It was filled with blackouts and riots. All these films that I've made have been attempts to recreate my own past — trying to convey what New York meant to me. That was not dinner at Rockefeller Center — or if it was, you would view that as the most amazing night of your life.

On what inspired making a film set in the 1920s: I had a number of photographs. My family's pretty well chronicled. I wanted to convey the mood of those photographs. Then on my father's side, his family came over in 1923, through Ellis Island. We have all the paperwork. We took my grandfather on a trip to Ellis Island when it first opened up in 1976. He walked in and burst into tears.

Like the greats

MARION COTILLARD
THE WEINSTEIN COMPANY

On Marion Cotillard's character having been inspired, partly, by "La Strada" star Giulietta Masina: There's a bit of Giulietta Masina, but Giulietta Masina winds up playing simpletons almost exclusively. I had seen Marion as a combination of Giulietta Masina with a bit of [Renee] Falconetti from a Dreyer film ["The Passion of Joan of Arc"] and a bit of Lillian Gish — a kind of silent film movie actress. She has a strength too, a will. If you come close, she'll kill you. I thought that was a kind of survival mode, which Masina doesn't have.

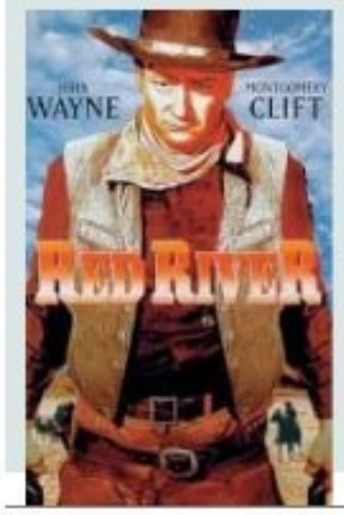
HOLD YOUR BREATH AND GO UNDER AGAIN WITH 'ZISSOU'

Duke redux

'Red River'

Of Howard Hawks' Westerns starring John Wayne, "Rio Bravo" tends to get the most love, but "Red River" might be the deeper film. It's a snaky cattle drive picture that quietly explores friendship and loyalty and features one of Wayne's more intimidating performances.



'The Life Aquatic With Steve Zissou'

The Criterion Collection
$39.95

A decade ago "The Life Aquatic with Steve Zissou" was Wes Anderson's first boondoggle — a costly Christmas Day release that turned out to be his most dense and inaccessible film to date. Such films don't offer instant gratification but rather require time to sit. Upon deeper reflection and repeat viewings, it's still not his most enjoyable film — that would be his most recent, "The Grand Budapest Hotel" — but it's possibly his most thoughtful. It sneaks up on you.

Bill Murray had played quiet depressives in "Rushmore" and "The Royal Tenenbaums." As Steve Zissou, a Jacques Cousteau-style populist marine biologist, he's more animated. He's still depressed: His best friend (Seymour Cassel) has been eaten by a "jaguar shark," and he's also being eaten away by fears of obsolescence. His best days, he fears, are behind him.

Throughout the film Anderson plays with manufactured worlds (obvious sets, matching costumes, invented aquatic life forms) running against reality. The film has pirates and grand ocean voyages, but the pirates are the real, unromanticized kind, and the funds to sail are always on the verge of running out. It's telling that throughout Anderson's costliest film is a constant worry about money.

Anderson is often criticized for disappearing into his own worlds. But his films are about exploring the idea of how we create realities for ourselves to stave off the pain of real life. "The Life Aquatic" is just the one that puts this front and center.

OLD CITY IS ABUZZ WHILE THE RITZ GOES NUDE

It looks like the success, and peacefulness, of Old City's May 15 Night Market — the neighborhood-hopping food truck extravaganza — has convinced the neighborhood association's honchos to organize its own street fair, along the lines of Rittenhouse Row Spring Festival. Nothing is scheduled yet, but the association is supposedly working fast.

If a street fair happens, Old City might have a Honey's Sit 'n Eat joining the festivities. Jeb Woody and Ellen Mogell already have two always-crowded Honey's restaurants, the original in Northern Liberties and the newer spot on 21st and South. Rumors of an Old City location at 228 Vine St., next to the Painted Bride Art Center — possibly with a liquor license — started last March. Word is the project is being fast-tracked and set to open no later than late summer.

SATURDAY, MAY 31ST

FRED BEANS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

Doylestown, PA - Fred Beans, CEO and Founder of the Fred Beans Automotive Group located in Doylestown, PA, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, May 31st at 9:00AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, all 8 Fred Beans Doylestown locations are selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships in Doylestown features new Ford, Lincoln, Mitsubishi, Dodge, Chrysler, Jeep, Hyundai, Nissan, Subaru, Chevrolet, Cadillac, Buick, and GMC vehicles.

Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies for this sale.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interests."

Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that is right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of May 30th after close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10,000,000 in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less than perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV home by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

The sunny side of the bed

Between the sheets. Give your bed a summer wardrobe swap.

There's nothing like waking up to a beautiful summer day while swathed in cool, crisp, daisy-fresh bedding. Unfortunately, not just any set of sheets is going to do the trick. Selecting linens is like selecting anything you invite into your bed: If you just pick the prettiest pattern and fall for slick packaging, you're in for a morning of sweaty regret.

We hit up designer Karin Shieh — co-founder of Crane & Canopy bedding — for some tips on waking up on the right side of the bed this summer.

Soft blues can give your bedroom a beachy vibe. / CRANE & CANOPY

Fabric matters

"Linen, jersey and 100 percent cotton are all lovely fabrics for warm summer nights," says Shieh. "At the end of the day, it all comes down to personal preference. While linen and jersey both breathe and insulate well, they have some disadvantages. Linen is difficult to iron and wash, wrinkles easily and is not as soft. Jersey wears out quickly, stretches out and retains body odors." What you should never bed: polyester or polyester-cotton blends, which get sweaty and stick to your skin.

By the numbers

"Thread count does matter, but only up to 430," says Shieh.

Be skeptical of thread count

Once the gold standard for sheets, "thread count" is now a suspect buzz phrase on a par with "all-natural" and "eco-friendly." "In recent years, it has become a more meaningless marketing claim," says Shieh. "Thread count does matter, but only up to 430. With higher thread count, you get finer threads, which results in a softer and smoother fabric. After around 430, additional thread count can only be achieved through 'creative' manufacturing methods — which do not add to a higher quality product."

But don't be afraid of a little color

"There is nothing as crisp or classic as the all-white bed. But for the warmer months, if you aren't already beach- or lake-side, choose a color or pattern that sets the tone for summer," suggests Shieh. "Colors such as Newport blues, chic yellows and seafoam green bring an element of happiness that contrasts with the summer heat."

PLUS

Odds and ends

Pillows

When it comes to pillows, Shieh suggests an odd approach: "I like to follow the 'odd number rule,' which removes symmetry and is more pleasing to the eye.

"Combining large repeated patterns with textures or smaller patterns can not only make a room appear larger but can also add character to the bedroom," she says. Pictured on this page is Crane & Canopy's Piper Blue collection. $30-$149, www.craneandcanopy.com

Deck. Revive your weathered patio furniture on the cheap.

Don't re-buy, just revamp

Don't spend the money on new outdoor loungers. With a few easy steps, you can revitalize ones you already have. INGRAM PUBLISHING

Fixing tatty old patio furniture instead of buying new has three bonuses: It's less expensive, less stuff goes to the landfill, and it's fun to reimagine and repaint chairs and tables.

"Most broken or loose parts on wood patio furniture are the result of failed glue joints, broken wood or a loose screw," says Rockler's DIY project specialist Dan Cary.

"Apply a thin layer of glue to both surfaces and clamp them together until the glue has cured," says Cary. "If the pieces don't fit together perfectly, use a two-part structural epoxy."

Replace missing or loose screws with longer or slightly thicker ones, or drive a new screw near the previous one.

"Avoid splitting wood by pre-drilling with a tapered countersink bit," says Cary. "That also leaves the screw head flush, making the repair look clean and eliminating the risk of catching clothing or scratching skin."

Decorating company Farrow & Ball's creative director Sarah Cole says, "Remove all rust with sandpaper and a wire brush, and then paint with metal primer. Leave the primer one week to fully dry and harden, then lightly sand and apply a coat of metal primer and undercoat before your topcoat color."

Good care saves wood, too.

"Paint is unlikely to adhere properly to chipped or rotten wood and may result in peeling or blistered paint," says Cole. "Remove and burn back anything that's become loose using a blowtorch before thoroughly sanding. "

Don't have your own blow torch? You can pick one up at Home Depot for around $25.

SUMMER BLOCKBUSTERS FOR THE GAMING CROWD

The latest installment of "Mario Kart" may be the best one ever, at least in this writer's humble opinion. / PROVIDED

It used to be that summer was for the biggest movies and fall was for the biggest video games. But now the next "Star Wars" is coming out in winter, and blockbuster video games now come out during the summer. Times change.

'Mario Kart 8'

System: Wii U
Maker: Nintendo
• • • • •

When you're an innocent kid, "Mario Kart" goes great with a glass of milk. When you're a cynical, beaten-down adult, it goes great with a beer or 20. "Mario Kart" is the universal equalizer and now it's back, but is the new installment any good?

Duh. Of course it's good. It might even be the very best "Mario Kart" ever made. It plays faster than ever, with courses exploring an anti-gravity mechanic that never overstays its welcome. The only letdown is that the battle mode offers up no original courses.

'Watch Dogs'

System: Every console (PS4 version reviewed)
Maker: Ubisoft
• • • • ◦

It was only a matter of time before gaming tried to tackle the surveillance state. Edward Snowden, take heart: "Watch Dogs" lets you play in an information-soaked dystopia where privacy is about as antiquated a notion as the milkman or a boob-free episode of "Game of Thrones."

"Watch Dogs," the rare AAA title that isn't a sequel or spin-off, is a new take on the "Grand Theft Auto"-style open world playground. You play as a Chicago-based hacker in the near future and — due to your mad hax0r skills — are able to spy on everyone around you, control traffic lights and cause all manner of chaos. At its heart, the single-player component isn't too far removed from GTA, but the additional control you are provided over the city is a welcome addition. The only downsides are some slightly derivative online modes.

INDULGENT NO-BAKE DESSERTS FOR SUMMER

Joy's Healthy Bite

JOY BAUER

WWW.JOYBAUER.COM

Hear from the health and wellness expert for the "Today" show and "New York Times" best-selling author.

Summer just wouldn't be as sweet without satisfying treats. But during beach season, you might feel more guilty for indulging when it's time to put on your bathing suit. And who wants to turn on the oven when it's already blazing outside? These slimming no-bake options are packed with flavor and super-healthy — plus, there's zero guilty aftermath. Enjoy!

These crustless key lime pies are guiltless, too. / PROVIDED

Recipe

Crustless key lime pie

This delicious no-fuss take on key lime pie can be whipped up in a flash. Simply mix the juice of four key limes (or one regular lime) and 1.5 teaspoons sugar into a 6-ounce container of plain, nonfat Greek yogurt. To top it off, sprinkle on a few crushed honey-flavored mini graham crackers. This tangy treat is just 150 calories, loaded with 18 grams of protein and screams summer!

Cinnamon cheesecake fondue

Have a craving for New York-style cheesecake, but don't want to heat up your kitchen or splurge on a disastrous 1,000-plus-calorie slice? Give this version a shot: Combine 4 ounces of low-fat cream cheese (room temperature), ¾ cup nonfat sour cream, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon vanilla extract. Whisk well, until completely smooth, then refrigerate for 30 minutes before serving. Enjoy with fresh-cut fruit — apples, cantaloupe, honeydew, pineapples, peaches, strawberries or whatever you have on hand. This recipe makes four portions at just 129 calories each, but you can double or triple the batch for picnics and backyard barbecues. It's a total party pleaser!

Chocolate dream milkshake

Slurp a chocolate shake at the ice cream parlor, and it will cost you at least 650 calories. Here's a skinny version with the same indulgent flavor that you can make at home: In a blender, toss in ½ cup unsweetened vanilla almond milk, ¾ cup light chocolate ice cream, half a ripe banana and 1 teaspoon unsweetened cocoa powder. Swirl it up until it's smooth and frothy, then top with a squirt of all-natural aerated whipped cream. All this for just 230 calories! I dare you not to love it.

Metro does not endorse the opinions of the author.

Watermelon and grape kebabs make a great natural frozen treat. PROVIDED

Recipe

Frozen watermelon-grape kebabs

These "kebabs" take advantage of naturally sweet seasonal fruit, and I'll admit that this dessert is so easy, it's almost shameful to call it a recipe. Simply cut watermelon into 1-inch cubes, then put on a skewer, alternating them with purple grapes. Next, pop in the freezer for about an hour, and enjoy nature's nutrient-packed "popsicle." This sweet treat is terrific for kids of all ages.

Nutrition. Which vitamins do you really need to take?

Find out what your daily vitamin regimen should be. / ZOONAR

Aisles full of vitamins and supplements can be daunting. Which are the ones you really need? We asked experts for their best advice on what supplements are necessary — and more importantly, how to remember to take them!

Nutritionist Brooke Alpert, a registered dietician and author of "The Sugar Detox," recommends vitamin D, omega-3 and probiotic supplements to her clients. Those three are what most people are lacking, she says, and they can be taken safely every day. "Generally, the goal is to get these from your diet, but there's no way to get enough vitamin D from diet alone," she says. "And there's no way to be sure that we get enough omega-3 fatty acids from the fish we're eating."

The nutritionist recommends that fat-soluble vitamins such as A, D, E and K be taken with food. Fat helps you absorb those vitamins, she explains.

And she has some good advice for how to remember your daily dose: "Put the vitamins next to your toothbrush, so you remember to take them before you go to bed. Brush your teeth, floss, take your vitamins, and go to sleep."

It's also vital to get into a vitamin-taking routine as early as possible. "A lot of people in their 20s aren't thinking long term," she says. "'I'm 25, I'm invincible. I feel great, I don't need sleep.' But get into that routine of taking vitamins, and trust me — when you're in your 30s, you'll appreciate that you did." LASSE EMIL KRISTIANSEN

Pro advice

Under the skin

Dr. Mitchell Kline, a dermatologist, also recommends a vitamin D supplement. "You can't get enough vitamin D by going in the sun for 15 minutes," he says. He also wants everyone, especially men, to get sufficient antioxidants. And don't worry about what time of day you take vitamins; though if they upset your stomach take them after a meal.

Snoopy for president

Re: 'Elect Clinton for historical significance' (Metro, May 27) Letter writer Reba Shimansky makes powerful and cogent arguments for electing, to the highest office in the land, Snoopy. He has appeared in newspapers, magazines, books and television; he is internationally recognized; and he has widespread appeal. He even has military experience! To paraphrase Ms. Shimansky's circular reasoning: "If Snoopy were elected president, it would be a milestone in U.S. election history because electing the first canine president and breaking through that doggie-door would be historic." Snoopy's leadership abilities far exceed Hillary [Clinton's].

Cut to the core problem

Re: 'Victim's father blames government "idiots" as town mourns killings' (Metro, May 27) While what befell Christopher Michael-Martinez is indeed tragic, I question his father's claim that its proximate cause was the NRA or the "failure" of Congress. California is ranked by the Brady Campaign as having the strictest gun laws in the nation. Further, half of the victims were stabbed to death. What was Congress supposed to do? Institute a five-day waiting period to buy a kitchen knife?

Home not so sweet for Phillies offense

MLB. The Phillies have been unable to take advantage of the friendly confines of home.

During Charlie Manuel's first season as Phillies manager back in 2005, he was asked about the impact of Citizens Bank Park, which had just recently opened.

"This is a place where you hit," Manuel said. "It's difficult for a pitcher but it's difficult for both pitchers. … Don't make mistakes because hitters will take advantage of them."

Citizens Bank Park has not been a place where the Phillies have hit, at least not very consistently. The Phillies have been shut out five times in 24 home games. The nadir was Sunday when the Phillies were no-hit at home for the first time since the Connie Mack Stadium era. That marked the fourth time in seven games that the Phillies were blanked.

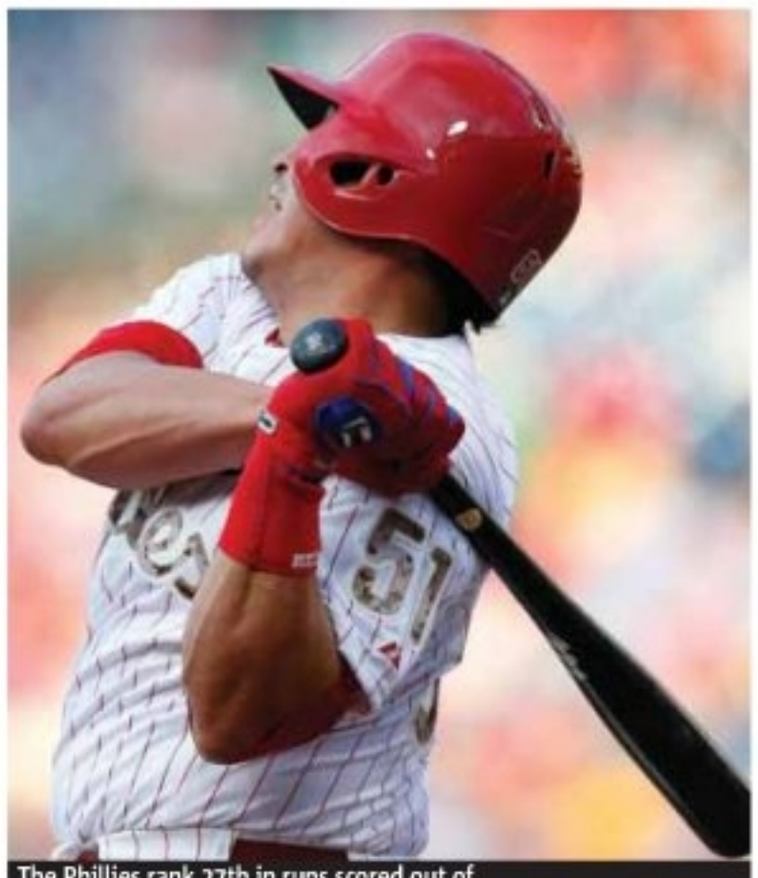
Why aren't the Phillies hitting at the park that remains a launching pad for the opposition?

"I have no idea," Domonic Brown said. "We have the hitters. We can do it. We just haven't found our groove."

But it's not just the hitting that's an issue at Citizens Bank Park. The Phillies have played their worst baseball at home. They are 10-14 at CBP entering Tuesday's game. Only six teams are at least .500 on the road and the Phillies are one of those squads. Teams that win on the road are typically winning squads.

There's no better example of that than the start of this week. Josh Beckett dominated the Phillies, posting the first no-hitter of the season. Phillies pitching had no answer for the Dodgers, who racked up six runs. The following day the Phillies appeared to move the clock back to 2008. Ryan Howard homered and drove in five runs. He and Chase Utley had three hits each (as did Ben Revere).

"Sometimes baseball is hard to explain," Howard said. "I don't know why we haven't been more consistent here. But we have to figure out a way to win here."



The Phillies rank 27th in runs scored out of 30 MLB teams so far this season. / GETTY IMAGES

SATURDAY, MAY 31ST
FRED BEANS HISTORIC USED CAR SALE

Doylestown, PA – Fred Beans, CEO and Founder of the Fred Beans Automotive Group located in Doylestown, PA, has announced a ONE DAY SALE on Saturday, May 31st at 9:00AM, where pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. This sale is being held due to overwhelming public demand.

Cars will be clearly marked, so come early for the best selection. This is a ONE DAY ONLY sale designed to get the local community driving again.

Fred Beans' pre-owned inventory levels need to be reduced to make room for shipments of new models arriving daily. As a result, all 8 Fred Beans Doylestown locations are selling these overstocked pre-owned vehicles to the public at drastic discounts in an attempt to clear excess inventory.

In addition to this huge variety of pre-owned vehicles, the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships in Doylestown features new Ford, Lincoln, Mitsubishi, Dodge, Chrysler, Jeep, Hyundai, Nissan, Subaru, Chevrolet, Cadillac, Buick, and GMC vehicles.

Fred Beans believes reviving the economy starts at home, and changing things locally will lead to changing things nationally.

In addition to the Fred Beans Family of Dealerships' extra inventory, additional vehicles have been acquired at incredible prices from various banks, repossession companies, auto auctions, credit unions, lease companies, and rental companies for this sale.

The sale will make pre-owned vehicles available for as low as $999, prices not normally offered to the general public. According to Fred Beans, "We want to give our customers a reason to believe in the local economy again. Someone has to look out for their best interests."

Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM to inspect the entire inventory and find the car that is right for them. Every vehicle will be cleaned, detailed, and fully prepared for instant delivery. On the evening of May 30th after close of business, Mr. Beans and his team will mark the special sale price on each and every vehicle.

Because Fred Beans' customers are feeling the credit crunch right now, the Fred Beans Automotive Group has given the dealerships' financing managers the resources necessary to get most customers' credit approved on the spot.

The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships has $10,000,000 in lending power, the result of over 50 years of strong relationships with the area's leading lenders. This means that customers with "less than perfect" credit history can have their credit approved and drive a quality pre-owned car, truck, or SUV home by lunchtime on Saturday.

Even if a customer's credit report shows a bankruptcy, divorce, tax lien, slow payment history, missed payment, or repossession, or if a customer is a first time buyer, Fred Beans may get them approved.

This special ONE DAY ONLY sale will be held at all 8 Fred Beans Doylestown locations this Saturday, May 31st, at 9:00AM.

Pre-owned vehicles will be sold for as low as $999. Customers are encouraged to arrive and register by 8:15AM for the start of inspection. Incredible sale prices, starting as low as $999, will be posted no later than 8:00AM. All vehicles will be sold on a first come, first serve basis. The Fred Beans Family of Dealerships is expecting a high volume of customers for this sale, so be sure to reserve your spot early.

Customers wishing to trade in a vehicle are asked to bring their title or payment book for immediate delivery. Fred Beans will even pay off your trade-in in full, no matter how much you still owe on it.

Most of these surplus pre-owned vehicles will get sent directly to auto auctions for liquidation. So, if anyone has been thinking about purchasing a good, clean, dependable pre-owned car, truck, van or sport utility vehicle, do not miss this special ONE DAY ONLY sale.

Courtesy transportation available from all local airports, train stations and bus depots.

For more information about this sale and directions to our locations please visit us online at www.999sale.com or call 1-866-920-9612

The Union feel the wrath of Donovan

MLS. Landon Donovan took his frustration out on the Union last weekend, and set a record in the process.

As soon as the news broke that Landon Donovan was left off the USMNT's 23-man World Cup roster, the Union's match against the L.A. Galaxy (4-3-3) Sunday became more than just your normal soccer match.

Not only did Donovan break the MLS scoring record with his 135th and 136th career goals in a 4-1 rout of the Union, but he did so with the same heart and class which has made him such a beloved athlete in the United States during his 14-year career.

The crowd peppered Donovan with chants of "U-S-A! U-S-A!" in disapproval of USA manager Jürgen Klinsmann's decision last week to keep him off the final roster. Donovan took notice of the support he's received throughout the week during this tough time.

"It's incredible," said Donovan. "You have no idea how many messages I've received — literally, thousands of messages from people around the country, around the world. People who've said, 'I'm a die-hard Sounders fan, I'm a die-hard D.C. United fan — I've hated you all my life on the field, but I'm so happy for you. …' The support has been overwhelming."

Donovan is the USMNT all-time leader in caps (156), goals (57) and World Cup goals (5). His teammates, although sympathetic for him, were happy to have him back in uniform.

"It's probably a relief for him to be back," said Galaxy forward Robbie Keane. "After all the nonsense that was going around in the last few days, he probably was just happy to be back on the field and just playing. I think you could see that in his performance and how hungry he was for the team. Obviously, it was fitting for him to score two goals."

The Union (2-7-5) have a lot of things to figure out before being competitive again. They remain in Los Angeles in preparation for Chivas USA (2-5-4) on Saturday. They've allowed nine goals in their past two matches.

"We dug a hole for ourselves," said Union midfielder Maurice Edu. "Somehow and some way we have to find a way to stick together and find a way to get out of it."

The game will air at 10:30 p.m. on Comcast SportsNet.

Sixers seeking steals

Here's a look at a few of the prospects that the Sixers could take with one of their five second-round picks on draft night.

JEFF MCMENAMIN
sports@metro.us

1 P.J. Hairston

At 6-foot-6, 230 pounds Hairston has the size you want in an NBA 2-guard, but a bad rap sheet has experts shying away from the idea of teams going out on a limb to take Hairston.

He averaged 21.8 points and 3.5 assists in the D-League with the Legends after being dismissed from the University of North Carolina in connection with marijuana possession after his sophomore season.

HAIRSTON COULD BE A LEGITIMATE SCORING THREAT IN THE NBA.
ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

2 Walter Tavares

It's unknown how healthy Nerlens Noel will be to start the season next year and it's equally as unknown how many minutes he'll be able to contribute per night.

Bring in the Spanish League's Walter Tavares — a 7-foot-3, 265 pounder with defensive prowess — and the Sixers could have themselves a serviceable backup coming in the second round. He's developed into one of the top rebounders and shot blockers in the Spanish ACB.

3 Damien Inglis

At nearly 6-foot-9, 240 pounds with a 7-foot-3 wingspan, he has extremely good size for an NBA wing.

He's only 18 and is said to have tremendous defensive potential, capable of guarding the 2-3-4 positions like former Sixers wing Andre Iguodala.

He isn't close to Iguodala in terms of basketball IQ or passing instincts, but he has the potential to grow into a similar defensive force with the right coaching.

Great finds

Second-rounders have been big contributors in the past for the Sixers. Here are the four most memorable:

George McGinnis

- Round 2, Pick 22 in 1973: He won two ABA titles with the Pacers before joining the Sixers. He went on to be a three-time NBA All-Star and average over 20 points per game in the NBA and ABA.

Maurice Cheeks

MAURICE CHEEKS

- Round 2, Pick 26 in 1978: Cheeks is one of the best Philly point guards of all time and also served as head coach of the team from 2005-2008. He is an NBA champion (1983 Sixers), four-time All-Star and four-time member of the NBA All-Defensive team.

World B. Free

- Round 2, Pick 23 in 1975: He is another career 20 point per game scorer and was an All-Star in 1980.

Lou Williams

- Round 2, Pick 15 in 2005: In the 2011 Eastern Conference playoffs, Williams hit the go-ahead three to beat the Miami Heat in Game 4, though the Sixers went on to lose the series. The next season, Williams led the Sixers with 14.9 points per game and came in second in votes for Sixth Man of the Year.

MLB power rankings | by Ryan Hannable

No. 1

Giants (32-18)

The Giants continue to roll, as winners of four straight and seven of their last 10 games. Their plus-42 run differential is tied for best in the NL as they've outscored their opponents 25-13 in their last five games.

No. 2

Athletics (31-20)

Oakland continues to play steady ball in the AL. The A's plus-100 run differential blows away any other team in baseball by more than 50 runs. Their starting pitchers also have the best ERA in baseball.

No. 3

Blue Jays (30-22)

There is no hotter team in the AL than the Blue Jays right now as they've won seven games in a row and now sit atop the AL East. Toronto is led by its offense as it has belted 73 home runs.

No. 4

Brewers (30-22)

Milwaukee is in the midst of its first slump of 2014 as it has lost seven of its last 10. The Brewers' pitching has let them down of late as they've allowed five or more runs in five of their last eight games.

No. 5

Cardinals (28-23)

The Cards' pitching has regained their form as they currently hold a 3.24 team ERA. St. Louis is in the early portion of an eight-game homestand as they have the Giants and Royals coming up.

No. 6

Braves (28-21)

It has been much of the same for the Braves as their starting pitching continues to pave the way with a 2.95 ERA. But a lack of power is holding them back from opening up a large lead in the NL East.

No. 7

Angels (28-22)

In most divisions, the Athletics would be running away with things, but the Angels haven't allowed that to happen in the AL West. The Halos are averaging 4.84 runs per game — third in the AL.

No. 8

Tigers (28-19)

After sweeping the Red Sox a week and a half ago, things have gone south for Detroit. They've lost seven of their last 10 and have been outscored 34-6 in their last three outings.

No. 9

Dodgers (28-24)

After Josh Beckett's no-hitter on Sunday and with Hyun-Jin Ryu just six outs away from a perfect game the following day, the Dodgers could be building momentum in the NL West.

No. 10

Rockies (27-23)

If there were any doubts about the Rockies and their strong start, those have been put to rest. Colorado's hitting has proven itself to be elite, but its pitching (4.19 ERA) still needs to improve.

No. 11

Yankees (27-23)

The Yankees are in the middle of the pack in a number of categories, both offensively and defensively, but have won seven of their last 10. New York hosts the Twins this coming weekend.

Despite their shortcomings, Phillies still in thick of NL East

Considering how badly the Phillies have performed, during stretches this season it's amazing they're only five games out of first place.

Only eight teams in baseball have a worse record than the Phillies — but luckily, they play in the tightly packed NL East.

"Fortunately there is plenty of time to figure things out," Ben Revere said. "We haven't even played two months yet. A lot of guys, who have yet to get hot with the bat will get hot."

But will those guys ever get hot at home, where they are well below the .500 mark and have been shut out five times?

"I think that'll definitely happen," Revere said. "We're due."

As former Phillies manager Charlie Manuel liked to say, "The guys will start hitting here when it's hittin' weather."

Hittin' weather is on the horizon, but will this group of Phillies connect?

The Phillies have six more games at home before heading out on a six-game road trip next week. ED CONDRAN
